Tales of The Ghosts of Glamis

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—If Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, who will soon be the bride of the Duke of York and may some day become Queen of England, moves to Buckingham Palace she will carry with her the spell of Glamis Castle, ancient Scottish home of her ancestors.

It will add another chapter to the ever-growing fairy tale which has become legend. Should Lady Elizabeth become dreamy and go off into a reverie or have strange fits of absorption, her friends will blame it on the old castle.

For it's a haunted place peopled by ghosts of dead kings. It has secrets that go back to the fourteenth century. It was there that the Macbeth of Shakespeare killed Banquo and King Duncan.

But the secret that is most often imparted, although it is supposed to be known to only three persons at a time—the holder of the title of Earl of Strathmore, his heir and the factor who takes care of the place—concerns one Duke of Brunsfance.

He was a mighty card player. One Sunday night he insisted upon his game. None of his followers would play. So he retired to his card chamber, vowing he would play with someone, even if it were the devil.

Soon came a loud knocking at the castle gates and a stranger wrapped in a red cloak demanded admission. He was conducted to the master's card room. Together they played all night. Shortly afterwards the earl died. Then nightly the servants heard sounds in the card room. The earl's ghost was doomed forever to play with the devil. The door to the room was bolted, barred and closed forever.

But there is another yarn about the secret room which goes back still further in time.

In ancient Scotland rival nobles and their retainers were always at war with each other. One dark night the leader of one of these clans, with all his men, came pounding at Glamis Castle for shelter. They were seeking to escape from their enemies.

The earl admitted them and led them into a deep dungeon chamber where he said they would be safe from harm and from all attempts at search. The giant locks were turned;

bolts were fastened; bars put up. The little band of fleeing warriors were penned up forever. The earl had likewise been their enemy.

The room where they met their slow death by hunger and thirst also became their inviolate tomb. It was kept one of several dungeons and was always locked.

But which one it was—that is the secret of Glamis.

FIRST DIVIDEND COMMISSION HAS AUTHORIZED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted permission to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad to issue forty-five million dollars in stock and to distribute it as a stock dividend to the present stockholders of the company. The company is required not to dispose of its holdings in subsidiary corporations. LOCAL MINERAL WATER MAY CURE RHEUMATISM

For the past thirty-three years Middlesboro has been neglecting one of its most wonderful opportunities to benefit mankind and bring fame and name to itself.

Yesterday a gentleman residing in Knoxville came to the office of F. S. Lee, engineer, stating that he had been directed to him as the one person in Middlesboro who could give him the desired information, wanting the analysis of the sulphur-iron water of the artesian well water that flows from the pipes at the City Hall. This gentleman stated that he had been sent here by a physician of Knoxville to drink this artesian sulphur-iron water to cure his rheumatism. He has been here about two weeks and has been drinking this water every day and has been materially benefited.

Mr. Lee told him that to the best of his knowledge no analysis of this water had ever been made. However he sent a sample of the water away today for analysis.

It seems that the best mineral water for the treatment and cure of rheumatism is a sulphur-iron water, and if the analysis of this water shows the proper proportions of these two elements then Middlesboro can mentally and actually kick itself for neglecting for so many years this gift to it and not used for its specific purpose of nature that has been freely offered.

FAIL TO COMPLY WITH FIRE ASSOCIATION REQUESTS

A letter received in this office from the Kentucky Fire Prevention Association secretary announces that Middlesboro are delinquent in replying to their advice on fire hazard improvement of their property. The members of this association made the survey of Middlesboro for the benefit of Middlesboro property owners; that more fires might be prevented and that, by complying with their instructions, insurance rates might be lowered. This fact should be emphasized on local property owners and more attention paid to this matter. Part of the letter from R. W. Snyder, secretary, follows:

The inspector reports compiled by the members of our Association when in Middlesboro recently, showing defects in the mercantile buildings of your city, were afterwards mailed with a letter and stamped return envelope to the various owners and tenants notifying them of the defects found and suggesting remedies, requesting that they advise us as to the action taken.

It is very regrettable that so far a comparatively few replies have been received, indicating indifference on the part of the recipients.

WESTERN UNION MANAGER MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARS

Mystery surrounds the disappearance of Leonard Blair, manager of the local Western Union telegraph office. He has not been seen since 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. No clues offering a solution to his sudden and unexpected disappearance have been found.

Wednesday morning he fired the clerk and the messenger boy. About noon he threw the keys of the office on the desk, wrote a check for his salary and left the office. The last time he has been seen here, so far as is known, was when he drew the money at the bank for the check.

All of his clothing and personal belongings are still at his boarding house. Apparently he did not return there after leaving the office Wednesday. He is said to be a man of excellent habits and was never known to drink. He has been in Middlesboro for three years and with the Western Union since last August. He was formerly a telegraph operator for the L. & N. here. His home is in Perdido, Ala.

B. H. Burroughs, of Louisville, district manager of the Western Union, has been in Middlesboro for two days going over the books at the office. He says that Blair's work is behind and that it will be several days before things are in good shape.

M. H. S. IS VICTOR AGAIN LAST NIGHT

Defeats Pineville 26 to 12—Russ Brown At Forward Stars Brilliantly.

The Yellow Jackets again showed their class last night in the game with Pineville High School when they came out winners by a score of 26 to 12. The game was played in the Boneway Inn gymnasium. R. B. Hatfield and H. Lewis refereed.

Russ Brown at forward was again the star of the evening. At one time during the second half he made three goals in close succession, one thrown half way across the field, and the crowd of spectators, Pineville and Middlesboro alike, cheered him roundly for his work. McWilliams starred again and all of the boys played good basketball. More than one onlooker prophesied a prominent place for Middlesboro in next week's South-eastern Kentucky tournament if they keep up their present good playing.

The lineup follows:

NEGRO PREACHER AND MOONSHINE SUPPLY TAKEN BY OFFICERS

The Rev. H. Pickett, dusky dispenser of religion and moonshine, and four half-gallon jars of his stock in trade were captured last night by federal prohibition officers and members of the police department. The reverend brother was taken to Pineville by the federal officers. He will be tried in police court here later.

The liquor was found at the "soft drink" stand and barber shop which is operated by the alleged preacher on Nineteenth street. The raid was the cause of a sensation among colored denizens of the street. Not only was their spiritual leader being taken from their midst, but the spirits were also falling prey to the sacrilegious hands of the officers.

St Bass and a small quantity of liquor were also taken by the officers. He was found in company with the hooch on Salisbury avenue soon after the preacher had fallen into the dragnet of the law.

W. B. Saylor and Jim Wagner, federal prohibition agents, Chief H. E. Ball, Reese Watkins, Charlie White and Frank Crabtree made the raids.

MRS. J. T. EVANS CAR, STOLEN LAST NIGHT, RECOVERED

The car of Mrs. J. T. Evans which was stolen from the garage on Edgewood road last night was recovered in a short time by the police department. It was found near the overhead bridge where a man was seen to abandon it.

Dr. Evans saw the car soon after it left the garage and immediately notified the police department. The police notified all nearby towns and had the road watched. The Virginia road was guarded by men with shotguns. Chief H. E. Ball started for Knoxville in the police car but was stopped at Tazewell with the news that the missing car had been found.

Pineville officers on learning of the theft immediately took to their car and began driving in this direction. Had the thief not abandoned the car it would have been a question of only a few minutes before he would have been caught.

Mrs. White Fugate underwent a successful operation at the Brosheet-Brummett hospital Friday night.

By Associated Press.

FREDA EASTON HOME, OPERATION ENTIRELY SUCCESSFUL

A surprise party was given last night by about forty-three high school students at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Easton to welcome home Miss Freda Easton who returned this week from the hospital in New York. Dancing was the program of the evening.

Miss Easton went to New York with her mother in December to enter the hospital for a series of operations on her foot. The operations were successful and Miss Easton was released from her plaster cast one week ago yesterday, after being in bed ten weeks. Dr. Virgil McGibney and Dr. Percy Roberts were the doctors in charge of the operations and they are very pleased with the results. They assure Mrs. Easton that within less than a year the foot operated on will be as perfect as the other.

Miss Easton will be on crutches for about a month as her limbs are yet quite weak. Without her crutches she is now able to stand very straight.

Mrs. Easton says the operation has done so much for her daughter that she hopes to be able to encourage others to send children of Middlesboro who are crippled to New York for operations.

FELINES FOR LENINE

It is hard to imagine anything that Russia does not need, but just now one of her loudest outcries is for a cat. Nay, not one feline, but thousands of them. Rats are taking the country, the Russians say, and there is hardly a cat left to wrestle with the problem. When famine stalked through the land, dogs and cats went into the soup kitchen and frying pan.
Now that the situation is not quite so desperate, the need of the cat has become very grave.

Despairing of finding a Pied Piper who might be willing to lend his services for even millions of rubles at their present market value, the Russ must content himself with an international cry for a cat. From Kiev, where anti-rat headquarters seem to be located, comes a plea for cats of every age, breed, sex and nationality.
Five million rubles are offered for vigorous youngsters which promise to grow into hardy cathoos, or adults, active and unblemished, twice as much is offered. It seems strange that the get-rich-quick man, even on the logogot for windfalls, has not started recruiting cats for exportation. The fact that he has not, evidently is another slap at Russia's unstable currency and precarious standing among nations.

But the fact that Russia has ambition enough to desire a cat is a good omen. The cat is associated with civilization. It has a humanizing influence, and its placidity, except for occasional nocturnal soirees, imparts an atmosphere of peace and contentment. Maybe in addition to catching rats the cat might inspire a better
national sentiment among the Russians. And, then again, if another famine should come along, there would be enough cats to tide them over the crisis.—Louisville Times.

FLUMONIA
NEW DISEASE

"Flumonia" is a new word coined by the Chicago Health Department to describe the combination of influenza
and pneumonia epidemic in the city.
The death toll from "flumonia" so far this year has been nearly twice the normal death toll from the causes.

Dr. Herman Bundensen, Chicago
Commissioner of Health, says: Influenza of itself rarely kills. Its tendency, however, is to develop into pneumonia by weakening lung resistance. The prevalence of cases of this sort in Chicago has led to the coinage of the term "flumonia"—which is not a scientific word at all.

Those who would avoid influenza and pneumonia should observe the following "don'ts":

Don't eat anywhere dishes and cooking utensils are not disinfected by boiling.

Don't fail to change shoes and stockings at once if your feet become wet.

Don't stuff if you have a cold. Eat
very lightly.

Don't let yourself become constipated.

Don't neglect to obtain sufficient sleep.

Don't get out of bed if you have a cold.

Don't expose yourself by wearing thin, flimsy clothing.

Don't put your hand in your mouth,
that's how infection is spread.

If you think you have influenza, don't let it get a grip on you. Go to bed and call a doctor.

PRAYER: O God, by whom the

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

The Twins left the "cut-out" lady and her chocolate cake dog with the pink-icing cars and proceeded toward the fiery mountain.

Between them they carried the basket of eggs that the old woman had given them.

Bye and bye they came so close to the mountain that their eye-balls began to smart with the great heat. The flames leaped so far up into the sky that it seemed they must be touching the sun.

"Let's wish ourselves over with our Magic Green Shoes," said Nancy.
"Oh, yes, let's," agreed Nick. So,
together they said a little rhyme:

"Please carry us over,
Oh, little Green Shoes.
If we would find Jack Straw,
No time must we lose!"

And the little shoes always willing to oblige lifted them off the ground and right over the fiery mountain.

But something happened
Just as they were above the highest part of the mountain, the flames shot up higher and higher until

A TRUE FRIEND

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ By Bertin Braley ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

He lets me buy him dinner,
And never buys for me,
My purse grows flatter, thinner,
When in his company.
My money he annexes
By various hooks and crooks,
But, though my soul he vexes,
He never borrows hooks!

His humor makes me weary,
His talk is most inane,
His tales are old and dreary,
And trying to the brain;
No matter how I view him,
I do not like his looks,

But still I totter to him—
He never borrows hooks!

What though he's far from moral,
With faults I can't defend,
And should he from a cell come,
A criminal gadzooks,
I still should bid him welcome—
He never borrows hooks!

their hot breath fairly scorched the little travelers.

Each time that the Twins wished themselves higher, the flames seemed to follow.

"Oh!" cried Nancy "What shall we do? We'll never get over!"
Suddenly Nick thought of his basket of eggs. He remembered the cut-out lady's words, "If you are in trouble, break one of these eggs."

He reached in, seized an egg and cracked it on the piddle. Instantly a shower of sand streamed from the egg, a whole trainload it seemed and told directly on the burning mountain.
In a second the flames vanished and in another second the Twins stood safely on the other side.

"Oh, look, Nick!" cried Nancy.
"There is Jack Straw's domain palace, on the hill beyond that river.
Just as soon as we arrive, we'll hunt
him up and make him turn the ring
on his left thumb and put Mix-Up land to rights again!"

"Oh ho, ho! You will will you,"
said someone. "Easier said than done. You're not there yet!"

Up hobbled a man on a peg leg.

THE
ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abelling.

"Not that—you can't mean it!" Kate half questioned

Kate touched the flaxen fluff at the back of Alice's head. She stood foolishly turning a curl on her finger, a curl which Alice never would need to tuck back into its place again. She marveled at the loveliness of the texture of her hair and skin and then felt ashamed of her own commonplace. Wouldn't all of the women in the neighborhood—
women who hadn't spoken to the little blond while she lived—come in now and speak of the prettiness of her face, the softness of her skin and hair
—and they'd pity her

That was like women Kate thought.
She turned to Sing Loy.
"Why?" she asked simply.
Sing Loy shook his head. The thing seemed beyond words to him, incomprehensible.
"Was she ill?" Kate ventured.
Again the silent negative.
Finally the situation penetrated—
Alice had killed herself. Kate shrank from the thought. Yet it held her.
She seemed so very here, a tragic motive Something about the slender figure swathed in brilliant silk suggested a merciful defeat

Kate knew she had little time. The coroner and undertaker would arrive soon.
"Did she kill herself?" Kate knew the cruelty of her words.
Sing Loy nodded. He shuffled to the bed, lifted from it a very thin sharp-bladed knife.

"This," he said.
And then, forgetful of Kate, he laid the bit of metal back on the satin coverlet, dropped to his knees and wept. It was a strange, tear-less sort of crying. It hurt Kate to watch it.

"Lallee! Lallee!" in a strange monotone. "My little Lallee—heart much hurt! Heart much hurt for my little Lallee!"

"She never know," plaintively, "how my Loy hurt and hurt inside. Empty!
Gone!" He raised his face, drawn,

Reception For Mrs. Francis Callison

Mrs. M. S. Callison entertained yesterday afternoon at her home on Gloucester Avenue with a lovely reception in honor of Mrs. Francis Callison, her daughter-in-law, a recent bride. About one hundred and fifty women enjoyed her hospitality. In the receiving line were Mrs. M. S. Callison, Mrs. Francis Callison, Mrs. J. R. Callison, Miss Mary Price and Mrs. J. M. Rogan. The bride looked very pretty in a dress of pale pink crepe de chene, embellished in pink rosebud and pearls. She wore silver slippers, and had a beautiful rope of pearls around her neck and a pearl banding around her head. Elizabeth Salmon, sister of the bride, and Jean Barry dressed as George and Martha Washington admitted the guests and Jean, Kathryn and Billy Callison acted as their escorts.

Music was furnished throughout the afternoon by an orchestra. The house was decorated in keeping with George Washington's Birthday with cherries and hatches. A miniature cherry tree stood in the center of the dining room table. The table was strewn with cherries, and on each corner a red can be burned. Refreshments consisted of angel food cake, ice cream with a cherry on top of it, and red white mints. On the plates were little cards bearing the names "Callison-Salmon," with bright red cherries attached to them.

Above is shown a gold-encrusted representation of the sacred cow which served as frame-work for one of the couches.

CUTE FROCK FOR A MISS OF 3 YEARS

Oh look! and see this lass of three. All rigged out for a dance. And how her party frock is made. You'll find out at a glance.

Two lengths of "hanky" linen fine. Each edge so neatly self-bound. And broadly checked in open work. With French knots for a background.

Gay ribbon bows caught here and there.

Wherever they seem needed. Complete this charming little frock. With daintiness conceded.

NAVAJO DESIGNS

Navajo designs are found woven in the hems of knitted frocks, or adorning the collars and cuffs of the smartest sweaters. Usually there are in black or in a darker tone than the body of the frock.

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine."

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has."

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

BUSTER ROBERTS PROBABLY LONESOME AGAIN DISAPPEARS

Buster Roberts, Pineville's ex-chief of police who has been essaying the role of a prisoner during the past few weeks and who found the Middleboro jail so lonesome that he could not remain here, seems also to have suddenly lost his affection for the Pineville bastille. At least he disappeared yesterday afternoon and has since studiously avoided contact with officers. As an incentive to vigorous action on the part of the minions of the law, a prize is on his head to the amount of twenty-five dollars.

The reasons for Mr. Roberts' strange actions are not known. It seems that he obtained permission to go to the court house on some errand and failed to find his way back. A carter arrived here last night and armed with this paper of authority as well as other and more substantial weapons, Middleboro officers will begin a search for the recalcitrant ex-sleuth.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to extend our thanks to the good people of Middleboro for the members and pastors of the Christian and Southern Methodist churches in our bereavement in the death of our sister, Miss Alice B.
